Exploring the Sonoran Desert

When I walk out my door,
Going to explore,
I can't wait to see desert animals and more!

When I step outside,
I watch the red tailed hawk glide,
Up into my tree
Because it's scared of me

The little cactus wren,
Peeps out of the saguaro,
It's watching without a doubt
Even though its scared of me,
It still squeals with glee!

Now in the shadow,
Comes a little rattle,
Sharp fangs so white,
How the sun reflects
So bright!

That little scorpion,
With its dangerous stinger,
Walks and walks
looking for dinner

The mountain lion hides
Up in the ciff,
Be Careful where you go,
They move pretty swift
